Tries the Necessity of Compelling
Huerta Commander to Pay Respects to Flag Ships on the Way.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—A general concentration of the Atlantic fleet at Tampoco was ordered today by Secretary Daniels after a cabinet meeting in which President Wilson had before the cabinet the necessity for backing up the demands of Rear Admiral Mayo that the American flag be saluted by the Huerta commander. The cabinet had discussed the situation in a two-hour meeting and the general consensus of opinion was that the Washington government should insist on a salute on the part of the Huerta commander.

After the meeting there was a conspicuous silence on the part of all officers and Secretary Daniels hurried to the Navy Department, where he prepared a memorandum of naval orders.

President Wilson conferred with Secretary Daniels and reports were current that later in the day a statement would be made.

Orders were issued for the entire Atlantic fleet to assemble at Tampoco. The transport Hancock, with 800 marines, was ordered to move south and a wireless message caught the battleship South Carolina on its way north from San Domingo and it changed its course.

Orders also were issued for the gunboat Nashville at San Domingo and the Tacoma at Santos to steam for the Mexican coast. Naval officers eagerly transmitted the orders to their respective commands.

The feeling that the Washington government had determined to show the Huerta government its fixed determination to insist on an apology and public salute pervaded official circles.

Officials said that while no ultimatum had been issued to the Huerta government the mobilization of the fleet at Tampoco was intended to put the United States in position to enforce one should the immediate developments make it necessary.

A statement issued by Secretary Daniels follows:

"Secretary of the Navy Daniels this afternoon sent orders to Rear Admiral Halsey commander-in-chief, Atlantic fleet, to proceed at once with all the ships under his command to Tampoco. A United States fleet is at Hampton Roads. At the same time orders were issued for the Hancock, now at New Orleans with 800 marines, to proceed at once to Tampoco. Orders were also issued for the Nashville, now at San Domingo, to proceed at once to Tampoco. Orders were also issued for the Tacoma, now at Santos, to proceed at once to Tampoco. Orders were also issued for the gunboat Nashville, now at San Domingo, to proceed at once to Tampoco. Orders were also issued for the Tacoma, now at Santos, to proceed at once to Tampoco."

The Hague, Netherlands, April 14.—The Netherlands government today ordered the Dutch warship Koningin Wilhelmina to proceed from Curaçao to Tampoco to watch over Dutch interests there.

The little boy had been playing and one of his playmates was running after him. He ran from between a pile of bricks and directly in front of the car. After a hearing he was held under $500 bail for court and in default of bond was committed to the city jail.

Meyers asked that he be allowed the privilege of securing an attorney, but though every lawyer in town was called up by telephone, all were either out of business or out of town.

Conductor Harvey identified the prisoner as the man who had attracted his attention by his peculiar actions on board the car. He said he was delighted at Trotter. Harvey declared that his roll of bills was in his left hip pocket and when he counted up at night he found himself just $1 short.

45,000 MINERS LAY OFF;
VOTING ON WAGE PROPOSAL

Mines of Pittsburgh District Tied Up; West Virginia Miners and Operators Confer.

By Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, April 14.—Forty-five thousand miners in the Pittsburgh district are idle today, voting on the proposition to approve or disapprove the tentative wage agreement entered into last night by the coal operators and the coal operators. If approved, the wage agreement in force for the past two years will continue for the same period.

No time was set today when the vote would be counted and the result known, but it was stated that little work would be done in any of the mines the remainder of this week. A general strike has been waged against the acceptance of the agreement, the convention of "insurgents" last night at Monongahela voting to pay no longer the coal operators and the coal operators. If approved, the wage agreement in force for the past two years will continue for the same period.

J. S. BRYNER MADE SEALER OF WEIGHTS.
BY MAYOR MARIETTA*Former Burgess Gets Only
Plum at Executive's
Disposal.*SALARY WILL BE $1,000 A YEAR

Speculation Over Probable Holder of Lucrative Job Is Limited by Naming of Executive's Disposal.

Announcement of the appointment of Joseph S. Bryner, former Burgess of Connellsville, to be sealer of weights and measures for the city was made by Mayor Marietta this morning.

Authority for the appointment is vested in the mayor under a special act of assembly providing that the mayor in each third class city must appoint such an officer and fixing his salary at $1,000 a year. The mayor declared that Solicitor Higbee had assured him that he had full power in the matter.

This appointment stands without the approval of council in view of the fact that it is not made under the Clark act. It is practically the only appointive authority mayors in third-class cities have.

"I think Mr. Bryner will fill the bill," the mayor declared. "He was born and raised in Connellsville and has the nerve to go ahead with the work."

The new official will begin on his work as soon as his duties are clearly outlined by Solicitor Higbee. He was sworn in this morning and the mayor presented him with a little book giving valuable instructions as to the conduct of his office. W. J. Callaghan, county sealer of weights and measures, interviewed the mayor some time ago in an effort to have him combine the office in the city with the county office, but the mayor could not see it that way.

Mr. Bryner will act in the capacity of inspector, testing the weights and measures in mercantile establishments to see that they conform strictly to the requirements of the law. He has power to bring prosecutors for violations.

CONFLICT OF DATES*Good Roads Organization Goes By Default.

The good roads meeting scheduled to be held last night in the Carnegie Free Library failed to get under way. There was a conflict of dates, as the hall had been engaged by the pupils of the German department of the local high school, under whose auspices "Die Jugendenschaft" was presented there last night.

The authorities, however, provided another room in which to hold the good roads meeting. The meeting was announced to have been held at 8 o'clock, and after waiting till 8:30 Messrs. Herman and Chamberlain and four others who had come to attend the meeting adjourned to the library hall, where the exercises were in progress.

Mr. Herman, who is state organizer of the good roads movement, was vigorously discouraged at the lamentable lack of interest displayed in Connellsville and this in view of the fact that he has succeeded in securing a total of 70 men who are enthusiastic for an organization and who have already paid their membership fee.

Mr. Herman will leave the city this afternoon and will return in about two weeks when another effort will be made to effect an organization. During his absence he will hold meetings at Washington, Waynesburg, Bridgeville and other points in the western part of the state.

SAYS SULPHUR IS SURE TO RELIEVE ITCHING ECZEMA

Get an Ounce of Bold-Sulphur Cream and Heal Skin Eruptions Right Up.

Any breaking out or irritation on the face, arms, legs or body when accompanied by itching, or when the skin is dry and feverish, can be readily overcome by applying a little bold-sulphur cream, says a noted dermatologist.

He informed us that bold-sulphur instantly allays the angry itching and irritation and soothes and heals the Eczema right up leaving the skin clear and smooth. Bold-sulphur has occupied a secure position for many years in the treatment of cutaneous disorders because of its parasite-destroying properties. Nothing has ever been found to take its place in treating the irritable and inflammatory skin affections. While not always establishing a permanent cure it never fails to subdue the itching irritation and drive the Eczema away and it is often years later before any eruption again appears on the skin.

Those troubled should obtain at any pharmacy an ounce of bold-sulphur cream which is applied to the affected parts in the same manner as an ordinary ointment. It isn't unpleasant and the prompt relief afforded, particularly in itching Eczema, proves very welcome.—Adv.

Eczema Is Only Skin Deep

A few skin troubles originate in the blood. But very few. Dr. Evans, ex-Commissioner of Health and a famous writer on medical subjects, says: "We shall begin to make headway with skin diseases when we learn two things: First, that a skin disease does not come from impure blood; second, that so-called blood purifiers have no such action." Begin immediately to clear your skin. Stop that itching and burning. Drive out those pimples. Make up your mind to start now and give yourself a smooth, velvet complexion.

She shut off the light and closed her eyes. She reclined against the cushion once more striving not to think. Once, her hands shut tightly. Never, never, never! She pressed down the burning thoughts by recalling the bright scenes at the ambassador's, the real generous applause that had followed her two songs. Ah, how that man Paderewski played! They two had cost the ambassador eight thousand francs. Fame and fortune! Fortune she could understand; but fame? What was it? Upon a time she believed she had known what fame was, but that had been when she was striving for it. A glowing article in a newspaper, a portrait in a magazine, rows upon rows of curious eyes and a patter of hands upon hands, that was all; and for this she had given the best of her life, and she was only twenty-five.

hat entered his room and lighted the gas. The room was bare and cheerless. He took off his coat but retained his hat pulling it down still farther over his eyes. His face was all ways in shadow. A round chin, two full red lips, neatly covered by a blond mustache were all that could be seen. He began to walk the floor impatiently, stopping and listening whenever he heard a sound. He waited less than an hour for the return of the car. It brought two men. They were well dressed, smoothly-shaven, with keen eyes and intelligent faces. Their host who had never seen either of his guests before, carefully waved his hand toward the table where there were two chairs. He himself took his stand by the window and looked out as he talked to another man. The room was dark and the street deserted.

In the meantime the prima donna gave a sigh of relief. She was home. It was nearly two o'clock. She would sleep till noon, and Saturday and Sunday would be hers. She went up the stairs instead of taking the lift, and though the hall was dark, she knew her way. She unlocked the door of the apartment and entered, swinging the door behind her. As the act was mechanical, her thoughts being otherwise engaged she did not notice that the lock failed to click. The ferrule of a cane had prevented that.

She hung her wraps on the divan and put the roses in an empty bowl. The door opened softly, without noise. Next, she stopped before the mirror over the mantel, touched her hair lightly, detached the tiara of emeralds, and became as inanimate as marble. She saw another face. She never knew how long the interval of silence was, she turned slowly.

"Yes, it is I!" said the man. Instantly she turned again to the mantel and picked up a magazine revolver. She leveled it at him.

"Leave this room, or I will shoot," Courtlandt advanced toward her slowly. "Do so," he said. "I should much prefer a bullet to that look."

"I am in earnest," she was very white, but her hand was steady. He continued to advance. There followed a crash. The smell of burning powder filled the room. The Burmese gong clanged shrilly and whirled wildly. Courtlandt felt his hair stir in terror. "You must hate me indeed," he said quietly, as the sense of terror died away. He folded his arms. "Try again, there ought to be half a dozen bullets left. No? Then, good-by!" He left the apartment without another word or look, and as the door closed behind him there was a kind of finality in the clicking of the latch.

The revolver clattered to the floor, and the woman who had fired it leaped heavily against the mantel, covering her eyes. "Nora, Nora!" cried a startled voice from a bedroom adjoining. "What has happened? Mon Dieu, what is it?" A pretty, sleepy-eyed young woman, in a night dress, rushed into the room. She flung her arms about the sleeper. "Nora, my dear, my dear!"

"He forced his way in. I thought to frighten him. It went off accidentally. Oh, Celeste, Celeste, I might have killed him!"

The other drew her head down on her shoulder, and listened. She could hear voices in the lower hall, a shout of warning, a patter of steps, then the hall door slammed. After that silence, save for the faint mellowing vibrations of the Burmese gong.

CHAPTER IV.

Ostensive or Runaway.

At the age of twenty-six Donald Abbott had become a prosperous and distinguished painter in water colors. His work was individual, and at the same time it was delicate and charming. One saw his Italian landscapes as through a filmy gauze; the almond blossoms of Sicily, the rose leaf walls of Florence, the vineyards of Chianti, the poppy glowing Campagna, out of Rome. His Italian lakes had brought him fame. He knew very little of the grind and hunger that attended the careers of his whilom associates. His father had left him some valuable paintings—water-tube, carpet-cleaners and other labor-saving devices—and the royalties from these were quite sufficient to keep him pleasantly housed.

His earnings (not inconsiderable, for tourists found much to admire in both the pictures and the artist) he spent in gratifying his mild extravagances. So there were no lines in his handsome, boyish, beardless face, and his eyes were unusually clear and happy. Perhaps once or twice, since his majority, he had returned to America to prove that he was not an expatriate, though certainly he was one, the only tie existing between him and his native land being the bankers who regularly honored his drafts. And who shall condemn him for preferring Italy to the demotic center of New York state, where good servants and good weather are as rare as are flawless emeralds?

Half after three, on Wednesday afternoon, Abbott stared moodily at the weather-vanished grooves by Dalou in the Luxembourg gardens—the Triumph of Silenus. His gaze was deceptive for the collied old bibulous scoundrel had not stirred his critical sense nor impressed the delicate films of thought. He was looking through the grime, into the far-away things. He had arrived early that morning, all the way from Como to find a thunder-bolt driven in at his feet. Across his knees fluttered an open newspaper, the Paris edition of the New York Herald. All that kept it from blowing away was the tense if sprawling fingers of his right hand, his left hand simply at his side.

It was not possible. Such things did not happen these unromantic days to musical celebrities. She had written that on Monday night she would sing in La Boheme and on Wednesday, Faust. She had since vanished, vanished as completely as though she had taken wings and flown away. It was unreal. She had left the apartment in the Avenue de l'Opera on Saturday afternoon and nothing had been seen or heard of her since. At the last moment they had had to find a substitute for her part in the Puccini opera. The maid testified that her mistress had gone on an errand of errands. She had not mentioned where, but she had said that she would return in time to dress for dinner, which proved conclusive that something out of the ordinary had befallen her.

The automobile that had carried her away had not been her own, and the chauffeur was unknown. None of the directors at the opera had been notified of any change in the singer's plans. She had disappeared, and they were deeply concerned. Singers were generally erratic, full of sudden indispositions, unaccountable whims, but the Signorina de Toscani was one in a thousand. She never broke an engagement. If she was ill she said so at once, she never left them in doubt until the last moment. Indolence was not one of her characteristics. She was as reliable as the sun. If the directors did not hear definitely from her by noon today, they would have to find another Marguerite.

The police began to move, and they stirred up some curious bits of information. A man had tried to write the singer's chauffeur, while she was singing at the Austrian ambassador's. The chauffeur was able to describe the stranger with some accuracy. Then came the bewildering episode in the apartment, the pistol shot, the flight of the man, the astonished concierge to whom the beautiful American would offer no explanations. The man (who talked with the description given by the chauffeur) had obtained entrance under false representations. He claimed to be an emissary with important instructions from the opera. There was nothing unusual in this; messengers came at all hours, and seldom the same one twice, so the concierge's suspicious had not been aroused. Another item. A tall handsome Italian had called at eleven o'clock Saturday morning, but the signorina had sent down word that she could not see him. The maid recalled that her mistress had intended to dine that night with the Italian gentleman. His name she did not know, having been with the signorina but two weeks. Celeste Fournier, the celebrated young pianist and composer, who shared the apartment with the missing prima donna, stated that she hadn't the slightest idea where her friend was. She was certain that misfortune had overtaken her in some inexplicable manner. To implement the Italian was out of the question. He was well-known to them both. He had arrived again at seven, Saturday, and was very much surprised that the signorina had not yet returned. He had waited till nine, when he left, greatly disappointed. He was the Barone di Monte-Verdi in Calabria, formerly military attaché at the Italian embassy in Berlin. Sunday noon Mademoiselle Fournier had notified the authorities. She did not know, but she felt sure that the blond stranger knew more than anyone else. And here was the end of things. The police found themselves at a standstill. They searched the hotels but without success. The blond stranger could not be found.

"Leave the Room, or I Will Shoot."

scenes? From where had he come? Why had Nora refused to explain about the pistol shot? Any woman had a perfect right to shoot a man who forced his way into her apartment. Was he one of those mad fools who had fallen in love with her, and had become desperate? Or was it some one she knew and against whom she did not wish to bring any charges? Abducted? And she might be, at this very moment, suffering all sorts of indignities. It was horrible to be so helpless.

The sparkle of the sunlight upon the ferrule of a cane, extending over his shoulder, broke in on his agonizing thoughts. He turned, an angry word on the tip of his tongue. He expected to see some tourist who wanted to be informed.

"Ted Courtlandt!" He jumped up, overturning the stool. "And where the dickens did you come from? I thought you were in the Orient!"

"Just got back Abby."

The two shook hands and eyed each other with the appraising scrutiny of friends of long standing.

"You don't change any," said Abbott.

"Nor do you. I've been standing behind you fully two minutes. What were you glooming about? Old Silenus offend you?"

"Have you read the Herald this morning?"

"I never read it nowadays. They are always giving me a rout of some kind. Whatever I do they are bound to misconstrue it." Courtlandt stooped and righted the stool, but sat down on the grass, his feet in the path. "What's the trouble? Have they been after you?"

Abbott rescued the offending paper and shaking it under his friend's nose, said, "Read that."

Courtlandt's eyes widened considerably as they absorbed the significance of the heading—"Eleonora de Toscani missing."

"Bahl!" he exclaimed. "You say bahl?"

"It looks like one of their adventures. I know something about

UNITED STATES COMMISSION OF BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATIONS TO THE INTERNATIONAL CONGRESS AT LONDON, ENGLAND, IN AUGUST

Cincinnati, Ohio.—(Special)—The International Congress of Building and Loan Associations will be held in London, England, August 11th and 12th of this year. The Building and Loan Associations of the United States will be represented by an International Commission composed of prominent men. The commission is composed of W. F. Buxton, President United States Building and Loan Association, New York; H. F. Rankin, Secretary, of Cincinnati; L. L. Rankin, Columbus, Ohio; Henry S. Rosenthal, editor American Building Association News, Cincinnati; Herbert W. Pinkham, Wallingford, Mass.; Charles E. Clark, Covington, Ky.; C. A. Royce, Terre Haute, Ind.; Charles O'Connor, Hennessey, New York; and George D. Gilmore, Omaha, Nebraska.

singers! Courtlandt added, "I should have said a musical comedy once."

"You do not know anything about her," cried Abbott hotly.

"That's true enough," Courtlandt finished the article folded the paper and returned it, and began digging to the path with his cane.

"But what I want to know is, who the devil is this mysterious blond stranger?" Abbott flourished the paper again. "I tell you, it's no advancing dodge. She's been abducted. The blond!"

Courtlandt ceased boring into the earth. "The story says that she refused to explain this blond chap's presence in her room. What do you take of that?"

"Perhaps you think the fellow was or press agent?" was the retort.

"Lord no! But it proves that she knew him that she did not want the police to find him. At least, not at that moment. Who's the Italian?" said "only."

"I can vouch for him. He is a gentleman, honorable as the day is long, very if he is hot-headed at times, but quiet him out of it. It's this unknown, tell you. Revenge for some imagined slight. It's as plain as the nose on your face."

"How long have you known her?" asked Courtlandt presently.

"About two years. She's the gem of the whole lot. Gentle, kindly, untroubled by flattery. Why, you must have seen and heard her!"

"I have." Courtlandt stared into the hole he had dug. "Voice like an angel's, with a face like Bellini's donna, and Irish all over. But for all that, you will find that her disappearance will turn out to be a diva's whim. Hang it, bahl, I've had some experience with singers."

"You are a blockhead!" exploded the younger man.

"All right, I am," Courtlandt laughed. "Come on over to the South. Let and have a drink with me."

"I'm not drinking today," tersely. "There's too much ahead for me to do."

"Going to start out to find her? Oh, Sir Galahad!" ironically. "Abby, you need to be a sport. I'll wager a hundred against a bottle of pop that tomorrow or next day she'll turn up serenely, with a statement that she was indolently sorry not to have notified the directors and all that. They do it repeatedly every season."

"But an errand of mercy, the strange automobile which cannot be found? The engagement to dine with the baron? Celeste Fournier's state ment? You can't get around these things. I tell you, Nora, I'm not that kind. She's too big in heart and mind to stoop to such devices," vehemently.

"Nora! That looks pretty serious, Abby. You haven't gone and made a fool of yourself, have you?"

"What do you call making a fool of myself?" truculently.

"You aren't a sutor, are you? An accepted sutor?" startled, rather kindly.

"No, but I would to heaven that I were!" Abbott jammed the newspaper into his pocket and slung the stool over his arm. "Come on over to the studio until I get some money."

"You are really going to start a search?"

"I really am. I'd start one just as quickly for you, if I heard that you had vanished under mysterious circumstances."

"I believe you honestly would."

"You are an old misanthrope. I hope some woman puts the hook into you some day. Where did you pick up the grouch? Some of your dusky princesses give you the goby?"

"You, too, Abby?"

"Oh, rot! Of course I never believed any of that twaddle. Only, I've got a sore head today. If you knew Nora as well as I do, you'd understand."

Courtlandt continued toward the exit, his head forward his gaze bent on the path. He had the air of a man deep in thought, philosophic thought, which leaves the brows unmarred by those corrugations known as frowns. Yet his thoughts were far from philosophic. Indeed, his soul was in mad turmoil. He could have thrown his arms toward the blue sky and cursed aloud the fates that had set this new tangle at his feet. He longed for the jungles and some mad beast to vent his wrath upon. But he gave no sign. He had returned with a purpose as hard and grim as iron, and no obstacle, less powerful than death, should divert or contro him. Abduc tion? Let the public believe what it might, he held the key to the mystery. She was afraid, and had taken flight. So be it.

"I say, Ted," called out the artist, "what did you mean by saying that you were a Dutchman?"

Courtlandt paused, so that Abbott might catch up to him. "I said that I was a Dutchman."

"Yes. And it has just occurred to me that you meant something."

"Oh, yes. You were talking of Da Toscani? Let's call her Harrigan. It wasn't her dusky princess pecking into again. The truth is, Abby, I could hide myself for three or four years, long enough for people to forget me, I might reconsider. But it should be under another name. They envy us millionaires. Why, we are the looniest fellows going. We distrust every one; we try when a woman approaches, we become monomaniacs, one thing obsesses us, every body is after our money. We want friends, we want wives, but we want them to be attracted to us and not to our money bags. Oh, pshaw! What plans have you made in regard to the search?"

"Gloom settled upon the artist's face. "I've got to find out what's happened to her, Ted. This isn't any play. Why, she loves the part of Marguerite as she loves nothing else. She's been kidnapped, and only God knows for what reason. It has knocked me silly, I just came up from Como, where she spends the summers now. I was going to take her and Fournier out to dinner."

"Who's Fournier?"

"Mademoiselle Fournier, the composer. She goes with Nora on the yearly concert tours."

"Charming."

"I see," thoughtfully. "What part of the lake, the Villa d'Este, Cadenabbia?"

"Bellagio. Oh, it was ripping last summer. She's always singing when she's happy. When she sings out on the terrace, suddenly, without giving anyone warning, her voice is wonderful. No audience ever heard anything like it."

"I heard her Friday night I dropped in at the opera without knowing what they were singing. I admit all you say in regard to her voice and looks; but I stick to the whim."

"But you can't fake that chap with the blond mustache," retorted Abbott grimly. "Lord, I wish I had run in on you any day but today. I'm all in. I can telephone to the Opera from the studio, and then we shall know for a certainty whether or not she will return for the performance tonight. If not, then I'm going in for a little detective work."

"Abby, it will turn out to be the sheep of Little Bo-Peep."

"Have you own way about it." (To Be Continued.)

THE COLONIAL.

THE RUSSIAN ORCHESTRA.

After graduating from the Imperial Conservatory of Moscow Modest Altschuler conducted the Russian Symphony Orchestra of New York which appears here at the Colonial Theatre on Saturday, April 18. Altschuler has served in the Russian army. At this point it is well to know the difference between a "volunteer" and a "drafted" member of the army in Russia. To volunteer means to serve only one year, whereas to be drafted into the army means a service of four years—further, only graduates of institutes such as the Imperial Conservatory of Moscow can be volunteers.

During Mr. Altschuler's service he was a great favorite among his associates on account of his exceptional ability as a cellist and was given unheard-of privileges of freedom in the army owing to his accomplishment, even though he was only a private. The following incident will illustrate the discipline of the officials of the Russian army. One day when Mr. Altschuler was arranging a concert in the barracks in Moscow, the colonel of his regiment allowed him the use of his official carriage in order to carry out his plans more rapidly. While on one of the trips about the camp, his regiment met him and every one saluted, for seeing the colonel's carriage they naturally assumed that the colonel accompanied it. Mr. Altschuler not knowing the cause of this great demonstration on the part of his superior officers naturally returned. But when the officers ascertained the real occupant of the vehicle they were much disturbed to think that they had lowered themselves to the extent of offering any show of demonstration to a mere private but after a time they had extreme good humor of Mr. Altschuler which is one of his strongest characteristics, the incident was quickly turned to a joke. His associates afterwards called him "Little Colonel," which translated into English means "Little Colonel."

"but when we do, something has got to bend or break."

"You don't mean to say that you are going to settle down and get married?"

"I'm not going to settle down and get married, if that will ease your mind any."

"Man, I was hoping!"

"Three meals a day in the same house, with the same woman, never appealed to me."

"What do you want, one for each meal?"

"There's the dusky princess pecking into again. The truth is, Abby, I could hide myself for three or four years, long enough for people to forget me, I might reconsider. But it should be under another name. They envy us millionaires. Why, we are the looniest fellows going. will save time, and no one will know to whom we refer. You said she was Irish, and that when she said a thing she meant it. My boy, the Irish are notorious for claiming that. They often say it before they see clearly. Now, we Dutchmen—it takes a long time for us to make up our minds,

QUICKLY ENDS THE WORST BACKACHE

Makes Kidney Troubles, Bladder Disorders, and Rheumatic

It is no longer necessary for any one to suffer with backache, kidney trouble, have disagreeable bladder and urinary disorders, contend with, or be tortured with rheumatism, sciatica, and its torturing pains, for the new discovery, Croxone, quickly and surely relieves all such troubles.

Croxone is the most wonderful remedy yet devised for ridding the system of uric acid and driving out all the poisonous impurities which cause such troubles. It is entirely different from all other remedies. Not like anything else ever used for the purpose. It acts on the principle of cleansing out the poisonous and removing the cause.

It works right in through the walls, membranes and linings, like water in a sponge, neutralizes, dissolves, and makes the kidneys sift out and filter away, all the uric acid and poisons from the blood and leaves the kidneys and urinary organs clean, strong, healthy and well.

It matters not how long you have suffered, how old you are, or what you have used, the very principle of Croxone is such, that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results. There is nothing else on earth like it. It starts to work the minute you take it and relieves you the first time you use it.

If you suffer with pains in your back, and sides, or have any signs of kidney, bladder troubles or rheumatism, such as puffing swellings under the eyes or in the feet and ankles, if you are nervous, tired, and run down or bothered with urinary disorders, Croxone will quickly relieve you of your misery. You can secure an original package of Croxone at trifling cost from any first class druggist. All druggists are authorized to personally return the purchase price if it fails in a single case.—Adv.

Later Styles at $29.75

The $19.75 suits mainly in sizes for juniors and misses.

Recent shipments bring for after-Easter selling, never styled models on youthful lines and in spring colors, shepherd check, English club checks and quaint combinations of black with colors.

The $29.75 suits are in sizes 16 to 42, modeled for women and misses. These clothes are of a very high quality and the equal of suits costing more in other stores.

You frequently hear women remark that Wright-Metzler clothes are "different."

Their differentness lies in the fact that they come from certain high-grade makers whose clothes are exclusive, in Conneltsville, to Wright-Metzler's.

Our $25.00 silk dresses have all the distinguishing marks of higher priced garments, and the dress-making shows the care and skill of expert fingers.

No dresses are allowed to come into stock that we can't vouch for—texture, style and making. This dress, and its variations, we are exploiting in particular in its patterns and colorings in harmony with the beauty of line and design. We are quite certain that you will not see, outside this store, prettier or more fashionable models that you will like better.

Other Silk Dresses are Priced $15-$85

The $15.00 dresses, in several good models, are splendid values. Some are of excellent grade chiffon taffeta—plain or changeable—body lined, ruche trimmed and with triple flounces or single tunic-effect overlays on the skirts. Black and spring colors. Womens' and misses' sizes.

Between $15.00 and $85.00 are almost as many variations of style as there are dresses. The chief materials are Pussy Willow, Taffeta, Pussy Willow Crepe, Pompadour Crepe, Silk Bengaline, Chiffon Taffeta and others.

These color-tones—Turquoise blue, Russian green, reseda, Labrador blue, Copenhagen, Mignonette blue, sand brown, rust brown, navy, light navy, black and others.

Some model dresses, copies of late triumphs, are reproduced in Pussy Willow crepe, silk bengaline and crinkly crepe at $42.50 each. One creation shows exquisite hand work, gold net, French sleeves and clever puffings.
